Q. How can the electorate protect themselves against "lame duck" incumbents who, having lost out in the May primaries, continue to draw their pay checks, but rarely show up for the work they took an oath to perform? E.R.R.

A. We assume you are referring to the office of county commissioner and the answer apparently is that new legislation would be required. Few persons realize that according to the statute "county commissioners shall meet the first Monday in January and the first Monday of January every fourth year in an office provided for them at the county seat for the purpose of organization." In short, under the law, commissioners need meet only once a year. Naturally, it's obvious that the county commissioners do not adhere only to this schedule. They meet fairly regularly to transact county business (usually at least once a week) and we're told that on scheduled meetings days, all three are present, be it at the court house or Rouse Home.

Q. Could you find out this information. Is a divorced woman ever referred to as a Miss-or are they always Mrs.? Thank you. This is important. Miss or Mrs. ? S.

A. We're advised that once married a woman is always a Mrs., even though divorced. One can take back her maiden name, however, but not the status of Miss.

Q. Is it true that the chairman of the County Commissioners receives an additional $500 for serving in that capacity? G.A.B.

A. Chairmen in fifth through eighth class counties do not receive $500 since Act 113 eliminates this additional salary. See PERISCOPE, Page 2

Draftees normally serve two years and are then assigned to the standby reserve to complete their six-year military ob-

Earlier this year, Pentagon officials said the Guard faced a potential loss of about 100,000 men by next summer as draftinduced volunteers finished their obligated service. With draft calls declining, fewer young men are likely to sign up with the Guard to avoid conscription into the Army.

To overcome this the Guard started a heavy recruiting campaign but officials said they were not optimistic.

The wave of losses will come from the dropoff of most of the young men who enlisted in the guard in 1965, at a time when the military was building up for the Vietnam war with increased draft calls.

During that time the waiting list to join the Guard contained more than 100,000 names. But the waiting list has been shrinking since the United States began withdrawing its troops from Vietnam and the Nixon administration announced its intention to do away

Nixon To Announce Vietnam Phase Out

Nixon is expected to announce next week that the U.S. ground combat role in Vietnam will be coming to an early end, in-formed sources said Sunday.

In the air war, the U.S. Command said four U.S. fighterbombers attacked an antiaircraft site near North Vietnam's Dong Hoi air base 40 miles north of the demilitarized zone. The Sunday attack, the 71st this year inside North Vietnam, was launched after the antiaircraft installation opened fire on a reconnaissance plane the jet fighter-bombers were escorting, a spokesman said.

School District

Gets 70% Subsidy

Times-Mirror and Observer Harrisburg Bureau

The Warren County School District, according to the state department of education, is now receiving an additional 70 per cent of the quarterly state subsidy. This is in addition to the 20 per cent received in October, with the remaining 16 per cent to be paid the first of December.

The 70 per cent now being paid totals $768,497.81-of $136,000,000 being distributed statewide.

The subsidy payment is usually made in August. Because of the state's general fund limitations, the basic instruction subsidy continues to be made in "dribbles."

The Whittemore vehicle was apparently pushed backward some seven feet by the force of the impact, according to skid marks on the road, police said. Troopers Ralph B. Pfaff and Robert Mast and Cpl. Paul W. Brown investigated. Ambulances from Youngsville, North Warren and Garland responded and fire departments from Youngsville and Garland directed traffic at the scene during the two hours or more required to clear the highway. (Photos by Lester)

Augustus W. Myers, principal of the school, said the thieves apparently entered the building through the custodian's room and then broke a window in the main office door. Entering the office, they proceeded to break a hole through the cement block wall of the safe and reached through and tripped the emergency release. Following this, they searched through the other offices and went to the cafeteria where they broke open a cash register and took a sum of money estimated at $395.

In another burglary, this time at a camp owned by Leslie Gifford of Clarion, a person or persons unknown broke into the building and stole an electric stove, a television set, portable radio and a lantern, total value of which was set at $163.

A blue and white 1969 Snow Jet snowmobile was stolen from the yard of Fred McCanna of Marienville sometime early Sunday morning, police said. Value of the vehicle was $400.

Two Car Mishap Investigated

Warren borough police officers Tom Rosenquist and Robert Nearing investigated a two-car accident at the intersection of Pennsylvania ave. east and Conewango ave. at 8:20 p.m. Sunday.

According to the report, county commissioner Blain Mead, 58, of RD 1, Clarendon, was traveling east on Pennsylvania ave. east and had stopped for the traffic light at the intersection. A second vehicle operated by Harvey H. Stone, 29, of 119 Parker st., Warren, was unable to stop due to the slippery road and struck - the Mead car in the rear inflicting damage estimated at $150. No injuries were reported.

one for time and one for temperature. Both are motor driven.

The time drum has two pickup heads, one for the message and one for the time. The temperature drum runs to a sensor on top of the Bell Telephone building-16 feet above the roof making a connection directly to reading the gauge. The gauge in under control of the machine and the reading by the gauge on the roof. Minor routine of the equipment is handled by local Bell switchmen, who can adjust the audio if necessary and daily check the number of calls handled on the every six months by the Audichron people. Incidentally, Audichron has advised Northwest Savings that the number of calls placed since the equipment was installed in 1968, will reach the two million mark this month.

Redistricting To Cost County Two Townships a drop in population since the Several townships in Venango county will be included in the 65th assembly district and Warren county will lose two of its townships, Columbus and Freehold, to the 4th district of Erie county, according to the proposed reapportionment of the lower state house.

The plan, approved by the bipartisan commission, will put the two Warren county townships in the district now represented by Republican Assemblyman Forest Hopkins. The change will affect only the representative and it is expected that Columbus and Freehold and all other districts of Warren county will continue in Senator Frame's and Congressman Johnson's congressional and districts.

The accompanying map of the new district, made available to the Times-Mirror and Observer by Republican County Chairman William E. Rice, shows Warren, except for the two townships and Forest counties still a part of the district, with Plum, Oil Creek, Allegheny, Oakland, Cornplanter and President townships added from Venango. The new district extends to the outskirts of Titusville and Oil City, taking in Pleasantville and Rouseville as

There can be little questioning the fact that the defeat of the foreign aid bill in the U.S. Senate last Friday shook the world with the violence of a superearthquake. Governments in several countries throughout the world teetered on their financial frameworks in a manner of near collapse, while a tidal wave of adverse comments concerning the action flooded in from over-

In this particular instance it was a shifting of legislative thinking rather than a shifting of rock formations that brought on the eruption. Contributing factors finally added up what many Senate members have been expecting for a long time.

To a great extent, it would seem, the President's pique over the American defeat on the Taiwan issue had something to do with the action. Senators who would have otherwise supported the bill found provisions for the funding of the UN distasteful following the defeat.

Then there were those who object to the President's Indochina practices and policies and saw an opportunity to make their feeling felt.

concerned over the nation's debt of $400 billion, the world's greatest and more than the debt of all nations of the world combined; those who feel that after 25 years of American assistance more countries of the world should be self supporting; and those who have grown just plain tired of hearing the cry, "Yankee go home" after this country has spent a total of $143 billion to

Nor was the action taken by the Senate last Friday a rejection of the entire foreign aid concept. Previous to Friday's vote, some $2 billion had been authorized for such agencies as the International Development Fund, the Inter-American Development Bank, and the Asian Development Bank.

There is every likelihood that a less pretentious foreign aid bill will finally get Senate approval. There are foreign aid requirements that must be met. But it is hoped by the average citizen that in shaping up the substitute bill the Senate will be mindful of internal needs, and be less generous in handing out dollars that are badly needed at

Youth Vote Could Affect Congress

WASHINGTON -A scramble has begun for the political bonanza that awaits candidates in the 1972 campaigns: the 25 million young people who will be eligible to vote in their first presidential election next

If enough of them register and vote—and if they vote in a bloc-these 18 to 24-yearolds could select the next President and swing just about any other election.

But these new voters may not vote so solidly; they include many elements of the entire population-wage earners, housewives, students and servicemen. They reflect views of the inner city, the suburbs and the country.

One Thing in Common They have only one thing in common. They are all under 25.

The 25 million potential voters include those youths 18 to 20 years old who were made eligible by ratification of the 26th Amendment to the Constituion, and youths 21 to 24 years old who were too young to vote in 1968. Polls indicate that about 65 per cent of the total can be expected to register in 1972. Of the 25 million, only 42 per cent (about 10 million) are expected to vote— a figure that could increase in the excitement of an election year, or if "youth candidates" are on local ballots.

Balance of Power The impact of 10 million new voters could be substantial in a presidential race. considering that President Nixon's plurality in 1968 was slightly more than one-half million. Young voters also hold the balance of power in 31 of 33 Senate races and about 70 House contests in 1972.

"There has been a turnaround in peoples' regard for the youth vote," said Barney Frank, an aide to Rep. Michael Harrington, a Massachusetts Democrat. "Two years ago the experts were saying that kids wouldn't vote, or would split like their parents. Now they're taking a second look at the results of the registration efforts."

The results as of November indicated that youth will not respond to an appeal made strictly along party lines, but instead will tend to align with the ranks of independent-but not necessarily liberalvoters. Of those who choose a party allegiance, Democrats average a two-toone lead in registrations over Republicans. Students a Minority

But these registration figures are not representative of all newly eligible voters. Most of those registered in 1971 are white, middle-class college students. Yet of the 25 million eligible new voters in 1972, only 6.7 million will be college and high school students. Fully two-thirds of the 18-to-25year-old generation will receive little more than a high school education.

"We can't neglect the non-student vote," said Charlotte Roe Kemble, head of a group called Frontlash working with labor unions to register working-class youths. "If we do, a lot of people are in for a rude awakening, a lot of good intentions will be

"The young vote is still a big question mark." said Nick Littlefield, a 29-year-old New York lawyer working with Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) one of the most visible voter registration groups. "It's true that students have dominated our initial efforts, but we think students will be the catalysts in getting other young persons to register.'

Big Question Mark

Frontlash and the ADA are among more than a dozen student-oriented groups, labor uniins, political parties and tax-empt foundations that began registration drives in 1971, particularly in states with presidential primaries. Some organizations are concentrating in areas of large student populations, hoping to oust incumbent members of Congress who are not responsive to the ideas of young

Most registration efforts have been aimed at young persons intent on directing the nation's priorities toward liberal causes. They have promoted such issues as the environment, civil rights and aid to higher education, called for an end to American involvement in Vietnam and urged abolition of "repressive" laws governing drugs.

'Dump Nixon' Campaign? The anti-Nixon tone of some of the campaigns has been so evident that Republican critics have charged that the registration movement is a "Dump effort. Opinions among registration workers are divided.

"I think 'Dump Nixon' is a convenient handle for the youth vote, but it is too narrow a description for what we are trying to accomplish," said Don Siegelman, former president of the University of Alabama student body and an active voter registration worker. "Young people will vote for the candidates who will defend the things that affect their lives positively. Mr. Nixon has yet to prove that to many young voters.'

Former Rep. Allard K. Lowenstein, who spearheaded efforts in 1968 to oust President Lyndon B. Johnson and is currently chairman of the ADA, believes young people must be wooed on the issues rather than on personalities. But he is concerned that enthusiasm among youth could evaporate if an attractive leader does not emerge.

"The issues are enough to motivate people to get the registration started, but if we don't have a candidate, the work won't get carried through. We could beat Nixon in a great landslide if we didn't have to run someone against him," Lowenstein said.

Republican Response Republican party professionals are accepting the new youth vote with reactions of relief that the situation isn't worse, concern that some key states could be lost in 1972 and reluctance to get into the registration forays. Anne Armstrong, co-chairman of the Republican National Committee, said in October, "I'm going to concede that the Republicans will lose the battle of registration until July the time of the Republican convention.'

The reason: "Young people want to be where the action is, and next year the action is in the Democratic primaries. And let's face it—the Republican primaries are dullsville.'

Some actions by Republicans have seemed designed to obstruct young voters. Attorney General John N. Mitchell argued in September that students should not be given the right to vote in college towns. In Congress, 16 Republican Representatives introduced a constitutional amendment prohibiting college students from voting in campus communities. And Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, chairman of the Republican National Committee, has opposed legislation that would liberalize registration procedures

The Emerging Tragedy

By James Reston

WASHINGTON - Two great forces are at work in the world today, one driving the nations together and the other setting them apart. Everywhere it is obvious-it is almost a cliche—that no nation can by itself control the problems of war, the arms race, money, overpopulation, hunger, disease, the drug traffic or pollution, but at the same time the spirit of nationalism and protectionism is rising and the institutions for world cooperation like the United Nations are under severe

The evidence of this dangerous paradox lies plain before us. We know the facts about world hunger and run-away population, about the nine million refugees from East Bengal and the danger of war between India and Pakistan. They have all been in the front-page headlines, along with the dollar crisis and the world monetary crisis, but they seem to be beyond our understanding. They are too complicated or, as we think, too far away. We hear about them vaguely but we do not feel them, and even when we sense the danger, most of us feel hopeless to deal

The facts however remain, even if they seem remote, abstract and beyond our comprehension. The contemporary world today is a little like the modern American city: part black, embittered and revolutionary slum, and part white and prosperous. The main difference is that in urban America the poor are a minority and in the world at large, now being rushed together by modern transportation and communication, they are the vast

The reason of American political and public opinion to this present division between the rich and poor nations of the world is also comparable to the reaction of the white majority to the black minority in our own country over the last century. Even during the battles over slavery in America, most Americans knew something about the inequality of American life. Mr. Lincoln told them the Republic could not endure half slave and half free, and most of his successors in the White House, after abolition, insisted also that it could not live happily with a deprived black minority. Again, however, after pointless miseries and eventually great progress, we are still struggling with this dilemma in a violent and revolutionary atmosphere.

Maybe this analogy is not quite accurate-analogies never are -but what is happening in the world today, or so it seems here, is at least comparable, if not similar, to our own national experience with the American poor and particularly with the American blacks over the past generation or so.

What we were eventually brought to see at home, after long periods of prejudice, indifference, confusion and hopelessness, was that we still could not evade the facts of inequality. What we were unable to do on principle and by foresight we were finally forced to do by fear of violence.

The guess here is that this long and tragic national experience is now being repeated on the world stage. Our assumption at home in the past was first that we could avoid the confrontation with the silent impoverished black minority and then that maybe we could ride out the confrontation with the power of the aroused "silent majority" but in the end it didn't work.

In the end, it probably won't work either in the world. Poverty is an infectious disease—our own affluent children in their expensive rags dramatize the point. With modern communications, the word has finally got through to the populous slums of the world, where most of the human family exists, that hunger and disease are not inevitable but intolerable.

This is really what Prime Minister Gandhi of India has been saying here in the last few days. She was not asking for money but for recognition of the alarming facts of modern life in the underdeveloped nations and she may have been more successful than she realizes.

For while the Congress of the United States is now talking about foreign aid as if it were some kind of parliamentary maneuver or dirty trick on America, there are at least some officials here and elsewhere who see the dark horizon on the world and the developing class war between the rich northern nations and the poor and populous majority in the under world of the sunny slums below the Equator.

In fact, the most hopeful thing in this gloomy picture is that officials are now beginning to say that the old assumptions and the old institutions have broken down to such an extent, that the monetary system and the political system are in such a mess, that it may finally be possible to get acceptance for fundamental change.

Liberals and conservatives alike in the Congress voted against the foreign aid bill for a variety of reasons and many of them are even supporting Secretary Connally's hard Texas power politics, not because they want to go isolationist or protectionist or particularly because they like Connally, but because they want to find a new system that will recognize the interdependence of the modern world and force all the trading nations to accept a more equal sharing of the burdens in what is obviously an unequal and dangerous confrontation with one another and with the hungry and embittered majority of the human race.

HARRISBURG -A group of individuals who have symbolically taken the burdens of the Pennsylvania elderly on their shoulders will pause in Harrisburg tomorrow and Wednesday en route to a White House conference later this month.

By appointment and invitation of Governor Shapp, this Pennsylvania Delegation to the White House Conference on Aging is assembling here to plot strategy in preparation for their Washington meeting November 28-December 2.

Headed by Mrs. Roy W. Engle of Harrisburg, these 104 Pennsylvanians attending the "Governor's Orientation Session" represent various age levels, income brackets and fields of endeavor. Fifty Alternate Delegates also have been invited to the parley at the Penn Harris Hotel here.

Quarterbacking the Pennsylvania effort is the Community Services of Pennsylvania (CSP) which is under contract with the State Department of Public

At their fingertips will be a CSPprepared manual entitled "Policy for Older Americans" which contains the fruit of 36 meetings held across the State late last year. Those confabs produced some 700 recommendations—later boiled down by the CSP into seven broad needs of the Pennsylvania elderly.

OBSERVER:

Love It Or Stay

By Russell Baker

Secretary of State Rogers has ruled that persons who refuse to swear allegiance to the Constitution can no longer have passports. It would probably be excessive to say that this is the dumbest thing the Government has done all week, but the logic behind it is hard to grasp.

One of the standards Americans use for coping with malcontents -and who could be more of a malcontent than the person who refuses to swear allegiance to the Constitution? -is to tell the offender to leave the country.

"America-Love It or Leave It" our bumper stickers tell one and all. "If you don't like it here, why don't you go to Russia?" is the time-honored rebuttal of all good men to critics of the American

Denying the glory of American residence to those who will not give it total support has traditionally been a respectable policy for patriots. Just the other day Senator Barry Goldwater was urging that the entire United Nations be forced to leave the country because it had not stood firmly behind America on the China vote. Now, however, with Secretary Rogers' curious ruling, we have an almost impossible situation. Let us suppose for a moment that B.D. Smith is opposed to the Constitution. He goes to a cocktail party one evening and airs his views on the document to H.P. Powers.

"Separation of church and state is absurd," he tells Powers, "particularly if it means you can't have prayers in the classroom every morning. And as for freedom of speech, I don't see why some big-mouthed lout should be allowed to criticize the President out loud if he won't even get a haircut."

Powers, we may assume, will give Smith the time-honored explanation: "If you don't like it here, Smith, why don't you go to Russia?"

In the second and final act we find Smith at the Passport Office. Crushed by Powers' argument, he is applying for the passport he will need to go to Russia. Suddenly the clerk asks him to take an oath of allegiance to the Constitution. "I can't in good conscience, do it," he tells the clerk. "You see, the only reason I'm going to Russia is because I don't like those parts in the Constitution about the separation of church and state and freedom of speech."

Much the clerk cares! He has his orders straight from Secretary Rogers. No oath, no passport. With no passport, Smith cannot go to Russia, and Powers' patriotic impulse to rid America of a troublesome malcontent is frustrated.

Knowing Powers, we assume that he will join one of those organizations of angry men who believe that the State Department is the agent of an evil foreign conspiracy. He will probably contribute money to send five members to boo Mr. Rogers' next speech from the front row.

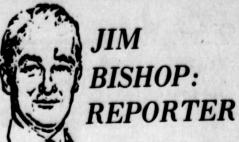

This overstatement of the case is not altogether nonsensical. What sense is there in forbidding foreign travel to the person who will not sign such an oath? Men who refuse to sign oaths of this sort are almost invariably those who Federal policemen regard as cranks.

The Government, with its insistence upon oaths that no true rogue would hesitate for a moment to sign, succeeds only in making life unpleasant for these eccentric few who resent the statist tendencies to hold all man-kind suspect and to extort affidavits of affection in return for permitting honest men simply to travel.

The taking of oaths of loyalty to the Constitution should not be demaned by common usage. At a Presidential inauguration, the taking of the oath is the one brief moment that is invariably splendid and moving and noble, no matter how dim the taker, how depressing his supporting cast, how illiterate his first speech. The young men taking the oath as he enters military service is made aware, unless he is absolutely tone deaf, of the awful solemnity of the contract he is making between his blood and his country.

To require an oath of every party bound for two weeks of overeating in Europe is to cheapen patriotism, in the same way that it is cheapened and exploited for commercial purposes by the sports industry, which wraps its greed in the flag and a million comic renditions of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

People who don't like it here should be able to go to Russia without having to lie to the Passport Office about why they are Food, except under rare circumstances, is a bore. As far as I am concerned, the edibles were designed to nourish the body and stop hunger pains. To some, eating is a joyful adventure. Women coo and exclaim over sauces which do nothing more than disguise the flavor of whatever they cover.

In all neighborhoods, there is a quiet panic trying to find a new restaurant, a new place which serves "better food" at a reasonable price. Actually, man lives off the top eight inches of soil and what it produces is the same few dozen vegetables, the grasses and grains which fatten steers and lambs, pigs and fowl.

The British are the world's worst cooks.

Dinner, for them, is a form of penance. Anyone who has smelled a platter of hot mutton basted in its own fat, kidney pie and Yorkshire pudding knows that the nation has been gastronomically sick for centuries.

The French are devotees of disguise. They can take a slice of bacon and make it look like De Gaulle passing under the Arc de Triomphe. It's still bacon. They pride themselves on being better cooks because they found out that wine poured on a sliver of veal makes it taste like anything but what it is-veal. The peasants, rather than the gastronomes, made the only true discovery-onion soup with croutons.

And yet I have enjoyed food at times. I gauge the spectrum of enjoyment by the amount of discussing I do afterward. The Pump Room in Chicago used to have a chicken pot pie, which, through some miscalculation in the kitchen, was full of good chicken. In New York, the Oak Room at the Plaza has a cheese omelette which, when depressed by a fork, causes hot cheddar cheese to fly out. In Golden Beach, Florida, Jimmy Di Nicola has a half-hidden restaurant called The Gristmill where all the food is practically homemade and the ice cream is churned on the premises. At the Mark Hopkins in San Francisco, the food is good but the service is so superb and the stringed ensemble so romantic that as far as I'm concerned, the waiters could serve empty plates. Joe Sonken serves Italian food as good as any I found in Rome, and he's Jewish. The Doldier Grand in Zurich covers everything with a monumental mountain of whipped cream, in case you forget that you're near the Alps. Casa Santino, north of Miami, makes dinner a special threehour treat where exotic dishes are pampered and loved before the customers

My wife is a good cook. I mean that. She enjoys cooking, something which I regard as only slightly less abominable than frying seaweed in squid. She tries hard to tempt me and I try just as hard to resist. I now have a potbelly which modestly covers my thighs. To eat good food in the South you have to go to someone's home. Most of the places I try on the road know as much about s i do about astro joint that has the temerity to stick a steak in a frying pan full of bacon fat can't be all bad. And grits. Unless you have been brought up on that stuff, it's like chomping on beach sand. I used to think my mother was a great cook until I was 20, when somebody asked me to eat at a restaurant. At that point, I saw those bouncy meatballs for what they really were-retreads. When we complained that she burned the dinner, she drew herself up to her full five feet and snapped: "Not burned. It's just touched a

We were touched. More than a little. Me, I'm a plain meat and potatoes guy. In Tokyo, I was impressed with all the delicate sauces and foods until I learned that what I had just finished was raw fish. My father was the last man I met who not only loved food with a passion but who could converse about the beauty of it for an hour afterward. So what happened? He developed an ulcer the size of a silver dollar. He and his ulcer used to have a reveille conference on "The Mood of the

One night I took him to Sonken's and, en route, he said: "I think I'll start with clams casino, followed by an oil and vinegar salad. Then a side dish of spaghetti al dente with a soupcon of tomato sauce, some hot Italian bread and a veal scallopini." He didn't know it, but his ulcer was listening.

By the time we got to the restaurant, he had a face like a lady finger. He ordered a bowl of corn flakes. The waiter said: "Sorry. We don't have corn flakes." "Then," my old man snarled "go down to the corner and buy some." The waiter did. "Will you have anything to go with it?" he asked. "Yes," my father said, "get me a double shot of rye."

That was din-din. Think I'll go to bed with a slice of lemon cake and a bag of peppermints...

What would you think about a small addition to the legend on the Statue of Liberty? Something like, "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses, and your advertising men."

Ad agency people are unquestionably the new downtrodden, and one has to feel sorry for them. Madison Avenue is catching it from absolutely everybody. The FCC is complaining that television commercials are frequently dishonest. The FTC charges thathcommercials utilize unethical marketing methods. Consumer groups clamor that there are far too many commercials jammed into every half hour.

There are special interest groups who do battle whenever they feel their members are being held up to ridicule.

The Mexican-Americans exerted pressure to get the Frito Bandito knocked off the air. The American Indians convinced Allstate Insurance to ditch the commercial showing war-painted Braves setting fire to a house. The Italian-Americans put an end to "Mama, mia, dotsa one-a spicy meat-a-ball!" The penal reform groups succeeded in removing the commercial showing prisoners banging their tin cups in the mess hall while they screamed, "Alka-Seltzer! Alka-Seltzer!"

Everybody's having such marvelous luck vetoing TV commercials that I may try to pawn myself off as a special interest group. What I'd like to do is get rid of the dove carrying in the liquid soap. You know that if they are going to level with us, they'd show an army of cockroaches shlepping that bottle.

Well, anyway, yet another group is complaining about commercials. Women's Lib, as they must to all things, have come to haunt the house of advertising. They say many advertisements are "insulting and degrading" to women.

The National Organization for Women (NOW) has even given awards for the ten worst commercials.

One of the "winners" was Playtex, for showing women engaged in "cutthroat competition with other women for the attention of men." The ad even went so far as to use the phrase, "She was green with envy."

Now everybody knows that women don't envy their friends' beaus, so what's that all about? The agency responsible for this mirepresentation would do well to pay closer attention to how human nature really works.

Revlon eye-liner, too, was cited for its nonsense approach. The commercial in question shows a MAN instructing a woman in the use of a woman's product. This certainly was a male chauvinist thing to do, because make-up artists are well-known to be females. Although George Masters and Bud Westmore are the first to come to my mind, I'm sure Revlon could have found a lady make-up artist, and I trust they'll do better in the future.

Crisco earned the fish eye from NOW for showing women as "subservient" to men. The commercial in question has a woman making dinner for her husband and his boss. The salad dressing is el-dreadful, and the wife is depicted as fearful of losing male approval. In truth, she should have been afraid of her husband losing his job-because rotten salad dressing is known to have those kinds of repercussions.

Amelia Earhart luggage ran a print ad showing a naked woman painted with the same stripes that were on the luggage. The complaint here was that women were exploited as sex objects. The real question, though, should have been what kind of luggage company names their product after a woman who failed to return from a trip?

While I do not agree with what NOW says about all commercials, I do have a suggestion for the agencies - should they be interested in assuaging Women's Lib.

Simply hire Olga Connally to do all commercials aimed at women. Olga, you'll remember, is the Olympic discus and shotput champion. She weighs in at a smidge over 200 pounds.

If Olga were putting on eye make-up, or sporting stripes to match her luggage, ain't nobody gonna yell "sex object." And if Olga were to come up with lousy salad dressing . . . who would

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How does one tell a 300-pound friend that he is wrecking your furniture? When he comes to our home he heads straight for one of two easy chairs and needless to say, he is bad news for anything that is put together with springs. We have tried, tactfully, of course, to offer other chairs, but he declines.

Both easy chairs were repaired recently and the upholstery man said he reinforced them so solidly that an elephant could sit on them and they would not break down. Last night our guest was here and this morning the springs are sagging again. What can we do? Remember, this is a dear person and we do NOT want to offend him. Thanks a lot.—Too Much Friend

Dear Too Much: Buy a special chair for the fellow and have a little plaque made with his name on it. When he comes to visit, escort him to HIS chair, purchased especially for him, and he could not possibly refuse to sit in it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married less than eight years and have been beaten up at least ten times by my husband. Here are some of the reasons: The car wouldn't start. (I used it last, so it must be my fault.) The TV broke down. (I sit around all day with the set on and weaken the tubes.) The supper is lousy. Can't I fix something tasty for a change? (Of course I could if he'd give me enough money to buy a half-way decent piece of meat.)

Don't tell me to leave him. My pastor and the lady at Family Service suggested it but they don't understand that the man has some good sides to him. He loves his kids very much-but when it comes to me, forget it. I don't know what I'm doing wrong-he is a wonderful person except for his temper. Can you help me?-Hurt

Dear H.F.: I can't do a thing for a woman who has been beaten up ten times and thinks her husband is a "wonderful person." You don't want advice, you just want someone who will listen to your complaints. I'm glad you wrote. Do so again anytime-and keep a crash helmet handy for future "emergencies."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please tell me if a guest who has been invited to dinner (in a restaurant) is expected to leave the tip? I am frank to admit I do not know the answer.

Our son, Lou, was invited by another couple to join them for dinner. He said when the dinner was over, the waiter brought the check and the host took it. When they got up to leave, the host looked at Lou and said something like, "Well-." Lou didn't understand what he meant. The host then fished around in his pocket for some change and left it under his plate.

A few moments later it dawned on Lou that perhaps he was expected to leave the tip. Is this considered proper etiquette? Thanks for your advice.-Marked Tree, Ark.

Dear Ark: The tip is considered part of the cost of the meal.A guest is not expected to pay it. When Lou treats the host couple, he will, of course, pay for everything-as a gracious host should.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your definition for the difference between a wife and mistress was pretty cute. It would have been better, however, had you used words which were more descrptive. For example: Passive Acquiescense versus Enthusiastic Cooperation. In fact, when there is Enthusiastic Cooperation a mistress is unnecessary. -Santa Fe

Dear Fe: Thanks for improving my language. From now on I'll use yours.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Marriage-What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Vermont Home Ceremony Unites Carolyn Holland, Ilya McCray

Carolyn Holland chose her Vermont home as the site of her wedding when she became the bride of Ilya L. McCray in a double ring ceremony held Saturday, November 6, 1971.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Holland, 12 Rotunda avenue, Essex Junction, Vermont. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McCray, Columbus, Pennsylvania, are the bridegroom's parents.
The Rev. Albert J. Strobel, pastor of the Methodist Church of Morrisville, Vermont officiated at the noon ceremony.

The bride appeared in a white floor length gown of sata peau and peau d'ange lace. Venice lace with blue velvet ribbon trim outlined the lace-formed bib on the bodice and deep lace cuffs of the bouffant sleeves. The front of the gathered skirt of the gown was accented with lace appliques.

Her chapel length veil of illusion was lace-edged. She carried an ivy-twined basket of daisies and blue tinted car-

Martha Holland, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was dressed in a nile green nylon dotted Swiss floor length gown, with full long sleeves. She carried a basket of daisies and green tinted carnations.

Kelly Jean Davis, a niece of the bride, was flower girl, and Paul Richard Davis, Jr., a nephew of the bride was ringbearer.

Michael Radke was chosen as best man.

Pennsylvania Senators Hugh Scott and Richard Schweiker urging them to support the welfare reform proposal presented in Washington October 28 by Senator Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut. Mrs. Harry Segel, president of the Warren League, said the local group was ready to take action on this issue, for the than a year of concentrated study by local leagues across the country. Welfare reform is a top priority item of the League of Women Voters of the United States. The local league is also urging Governor Shapp to join the coalition of governors supporting the Ribicoff proposals, since they offer state fiscal relief.

The Warren league kept Congressman Albert W. Johnson informed of its stand during debate on the Nixon-administration sponsored welfare reform bill which passed the House of Representatives in June.

Early this year the Warren league considered facts and issues on welfare and reached a consensus on the need for reform. The committee for this subject is Mrs. David Potter, Mrs. Donald Blair, Mrs. William Kennedy and Mrs. Robert Sokolski.

The Ribicoff plan, an expanded version of the Administration's reform bill passed by the House, is sponsored by a bi-partisan coalition of 18 senators and 13 state governors. Besides the League of Women Voters it has the backing of a number of civic organization including the National Association of Counties, the Mayors Conference, the National League of Cities, the AFL-CIO, Common Cause and a number of social work

The main parts of the Ribicoff proposals are as follows: A Family Assistance Plan granting a family of four an income of $3,000 a year, with this figure to rise yearly and reach the poverty

Under the Ribicoff proposal the entire welfare program would be federalized gradually over a five-year period. Under the House bill, only the adult categories, old-age assistance, aid to the blind and to the disabled would be federalized. States would receive more than twice as much fiscal relief under the Ribicoff amendments than is allowed under the House approved bill.

Single persons and childless couples would come under the income floor provisions which they do not under the House bill. This provision is important in Pennsylvania which provides for needs of such cases in a category of General Assistance. This category is funded entirely by the state and accounts for about 7 per cent of the public assistance cash grants in Pennsylvania.

General state-wide funding of other assistance programs are 50 per cent federal, 48 per cent state and only two per cent county.

The Ribicoff bill would create 300,000 public service jobs to provide work for welfare recipients compared with 200,000 in the House bill. The recent proposals would exempt mothers with children under age 6 from the work requirement and would increase funds allotted for day-care for children of working mothers. The League of Women Voters has been concerned about the quality of care to be given in these centers.

Senate action on welfare reform has been delayed in the Finance Committee headed by Senator Russell Long of Louisiana. He has not definitely agreed to introduce a bill this year, but the league is pressing for action on this important reform in 1971.

President Nixon has said, "The present welfare system has become a consuming outrage against the community, against the taxpayer and particularly against the children it is supposed to help. We may honestly disagree as we do, on what to do about it. But we can all agree that we must meet the challenge, not by pouring more money into a bad program, but by abolishing the present welfare system and adopting a new one.

In a second article, the local League of Women Voters will give information on practices that have evolved to create the present welfare chaos

Two Cabinet Appointments Sought By Shapp In Political Maneuvers

HARRISBURG (AP) - Political maneuverings to win confirmation of two cabinet level appointments by Gov. Shapp highlight legislative activity this week.

The appointments are of Dr. Maurice Goddard as secretary of Environmental Resources and Louis J. Carter as Public Utility Commissioner.

Goddard, who served on the cabinets of the four governors preceding Shapp, was nominated last spring but was opposed by several southeastern Pennsylvania Republican senators. Meantime, he is acting department head. Carter's nomination was held up for the past seven months but he is unable to join the com-mission before being confirmed.

A two-thirds vote of the 50 senators is needed to confirm but the chamber normally delays voting as long as any member has an objection. Sen. Robert R. Gerhart Jr., D-Berks, chairman of the Committee on Executive Nominations, said he will definitely call up the Goddard issue this week.

Sen. Edwin Holl, R-Montgomery, is the principal opponent to Goddard, because of the secre-tary's plan to build a high dam at a park project in Montgom-ery County.

Goddard contends the dam is essential to insure a future water supply but Holl and a number of his constituents say indegoing to run the Goddard confirmation," Gerhart said.

Carter's nomination to the $24,000-a-year post could come up, he added, but will be delayed if all the problems are not ironed out.

Philadelphia Scored For Improper Welfare Payments

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -Improper relief payments were made in nearly one of every seven cases sampled in a state audit of the welfare program in Philadelphia earlier this year, the Philadelphia Inquirer reported in its Sunday editions.

Projected to the entire caseload, the audit sample indicated that $16.7 million was lost through waste, inefficiency and fraud in the city during the 1970-71 fiscal year, the newspaper

The audits covered eight of the nine city welfare districts and touched 9.3 per cent of the total caseload.

The Philadelphia figures contrasted sharply with those for Pennsylvania's second largest metropolitan area, Allegheny County, which includes the city of Pittsburgh. There, the newspaper said, the state found improper payments in only 5.4 per cent of the cases.

Edward Posner, executive assistant to state Welfare Secretary Helene Wohlgemuth, acknowledged the audit findings and said they reflected "all the problems we're trying to solve in Philadelphia." The latest figures show there are 124,362 welfare cases in 312,314 persons. About one in every six Philadelphia residents is on welfare. Statewide there are 341,376 relief cases, representing 830,791 persons.

The audits, examining each Philadelphia district for a onemonth period, found:

- There were improper payments in 13.9 per cent of the cases, an increase from 9.3 per cent in fiscal 1969-70 and more than double the improper payment figure of 6.3 per cent the previous year.

- There were payments to ineligible recipients in 4.7 per cent of the cases, and in 9.2 per cent of the cases payments were too

- Grants were too low in about 1 per cent of the audit

William A. Polaski, director of the state Welfare Department's Bureau of Public Assistance Audits, which conducted the investigation, said mistakes in bookkeeping and errors in judgment by personnel of the Philadelphia county welfare board accounted for much of the waste.

Harrington commented that Mrs. DeFrees has contributed freely of her many talents to the community with the same zest that she puts into her favorite pastimes of cycling and hiking. Retiring president Merle B. Mitcham made the introductory remarks and presented the president's plaque to the incoming president.

In presenting a brief history of the chamber's accomplishments, Mitcham said that should the board ever decide to dissolve the chamber, within a short period of time he could see a group of businessmen gathering to form an organization to fulfill the present functions of the chamber of commerce. Retiring directors honored were Ralph E. Grimm, Robert Jones, Rockwell O'Sheill and Michael Mead. President Shepherd cited the 23 Warren County merchants previously announced who have received Plus Awards in recognition of their outward show of progress.

The invocation and the benediction were delivered by the Rev. Ross W. Porter, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

But Smith is no fairweather fanatic when it comes to beautifying his city.

He bided his time and struck when Naegele wasn't looking. The firm donated a month's worth of billboard space to a fund-raising auction of one of the Akron mayoral candidates. Smith showed up and was the high bidder at $80.

Nonplussed, Naegele refused to put up Smith's sign on the basis of a contract clause that states: "The company reserves the right to reject any copy which is offensive to the moral standards of the community or which has a tendency to induce or may result in the creation of new laws or regulations designed to restrict outdoor advertising."

Smith retaliated with a suit charging that he had the space coming because he had paid for it. The suit added that since Naegele was a monopoly, there was no other way Smith could post his message. It added that his message neither violated any laws nor was offensive.

Naegele fought back. The firm sued Smith for $280,000 on the ground that he was campaigning to destroy the company's business. The suit seeks $70,000 compensatory damage and $310,000 in punitive damages.

Smith's campaign against ugliness began in 1965 with a slide show presentation to a seminar of the American Institute of Architects. The slides featured aspects of Akron that Smith considered ugly. Since that first performance, the modish architect, who sports a walrus mustache and wire-rim glasses, has traveled all over the country, giving the show. In 1967, Smith presented his show in nearby Medina, a small town that he called one of the ugliest cities in the country. The presentation so stirred the citizenry that they began the most massive facelift in the city's 152-year history. Eighteen months later Medina won the Civic Betterment Award from the National Congress on Beautification.

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — thrusts deep into Houston terri-the New England Patriots capcame alive after Julius Adams and Dennis Wirgowski put a heavy rush on Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini.

A pass was deflected into the air, picked off by Kiner at his 45 and returned to the Houston 44. On a fourth play, pass inter-ference gave New England a first down at the four, and Jim Nance bulled into the end zone.

The Oilers took the ensuing kickoff, and Pastorini promptly went to the air again. Cheyunski intercepted the toss at the Houston 29 and returned to the five. Carl Garrett needed just two cracks at the line to score an insurance touchdown with just two and a half minutes remaining.

The Oilers had rallied on the passing of Pastorini to go in front 20-14 in the second half.

The Patriots, winning their third game in eight starts this season after a 2-12 record last year, scored in the first period on Jim Plunkett's 10-yard pass to Hubie Bryabt.

After Mark Moseley booted the first of his two field goals for the Oilers in the second period, the Patriots marched 88 yards for another touchdown.

PITTSBURGH (AP) -There were 55,578 witnesses to a case of assault and battery in broad daylight here Saturday.

The black-and-blue victim was the Pitt football team, and the assailant was eighthranked Notre Dame, which got away with a crushing 57-6

"They were able to do anything against us they wanted to. It was just straight hitting," said Coach Carl DePasqua of Pitt. now 3-5.

The battering began early when Notre Dame, 7-1, drove 77 yards in 13 plays for a touchdown on its first series.

When the end finally came, the sellout crowd at Pitt Stadium had thinned, Pitt had allowed two touchdowns in every quarter and the Irish band was weary from repeated renditions of 'Cheers, cheers for old Notre Dame ...

"They're a great football team. That's all I can say," DePasqua observed. "We just weren't able to do anything offensively or defensively." Notre Dame rolled up 464

ploded for 17 points in the third quarter, then added another touchdown with 2:19 left to post a come-from-behind 24-20 victory over the Broncos Sunday in a National Football League

The Lions, who boosted their record to 5-2-1, struck quickly in a span of less than six minutes for two scores in the third quarter to erase a 10-0 Denver halftime lead.

Detroit needed only four plays to move 80 yards on the first score, with Altie Taylor breaking free and outrunning everybody for a 36-yard touch-down with 12:46 left.

On a third and 18 play, quarterback Greg Landry hit wide receiver Earl McCullouch for a 76-yard pass and the go-ahead touchdown.

Denver's Jim Turner and Detroit's Errol Mann traded field goals to round out the third period, but the Broncos came back to assume the lead again on Bobby Anderson's five-yard touchdown run.

Helped by a face-mask penalty against the Broncos, Landry drove Detroit to its final score, hitting tight end Charlie Sanders on a five-yard score.

The Broncos' desperation drive fell apart on the Lion 24 when Denver quarterback Don Horn fumbled away a snap from Denver held a decided statistical advantage in the first half. The Broncos had 226 total yards, compared to just 83 for

Viking back Ed Sharockman with 11:49 left to play to wipe out San Francisco's three fumbles and two intercepted passes.

The victory kept the 49ers in first place in the NFC west with a 5-2-1 record. The Vikings fell to 6-2 but managed to retain first place in the Central Division. Bruce Gosset kicked first half field goals of 44 and 12 yards while the 49ers took a first half lead by holding the Vikings to 37 yards total offense, two first downs, and only one pass com-

Fred Cox kicked field goals of 18 yards in the first period, 16 in the third and 27 in the fourth-the first two set up after fumble recoveries by Alan Page, the demon of the Vikings defense who also forced a fumble, blocked two passes and spilled

Brodie once for a loss. The 49er defense was just as brilliant as Minnesota's, letting the Vikings get away with only field goals after the Page recoveries at the San Francisco 11 and six yard lines and swarmed a fourth down play on their own six early in the third period. Cox kicked his third field goal with 7:35 left to play to cut San Francisco's lead to four points and the Vikings threatened to pull out the victory.

Cowboys Salvage Game On 23-Yard Field Goal

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Austrian Tony Fritsch booted a 23-yard field goal with 1:53 remaining, lifting the Dallas Cowboys to a 16-13 National Football League victory Sunday over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The 29-year-old Fritsch, activated only last week from the Cowboy taxi squad, broke a 1313 deadlock after the Cardinals' Jim Bakken kicked a 36-yard field goal seven minutes earlier. Scrambling Roger Staubach, who quarterbacked the Cowboys all the way, revived a sputtering Dallas offense in the second half after St. Louis took a 10-3 lead in the second quar-

Officials Meet This Evening

The Warren County Football Chapter of Officials will hold their final meeting of the year on Monday, November 8, at 7:00 in Beaty Jr. High School

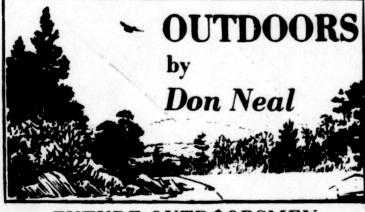

The elections of the 1972 officers will be held.

Lee Trevino's dream of a fourth national title.

Gallardo, who will help represent his country in next week's World Cup competition in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., had a final round 70 for 275, 13 under par on the demanding Club de Golf course.

Trevino, holder of the American, British and Canadian Open titles and heavily favored to add this national title to his collection, closed with a 69 for 280, tied for third. "Sure, I'm disappointed," said Trevino, who set a single season money winning record of $227,243 last week when he won the Sahara Invitational.

FUTURE OUTDOORSMEN

Well, come Thursday evening, November 11, the possibility of organizing a youth group to be known as Future Outdoorsmen will be determined by the staff of the local YMCA through the interest shown at a meeting to be open to boys between the ages of 11 and 16. Interested parents will be welcome as well.

The purpose of the organization would be to orient the youngsters to the wide variety of pleasures to be enjoyed in our wide open countryside through exposure to the knowhow of experienced outdoorsmen in the various fields of outdoor activities. Several persons well experienced in the fields of hunting, fishing, camping, canoeing, back-packing, boating, forestry, wildlife and fishery management, and the domain of the naturalist have been contacted and have indicated a willingness to cooperate in the programs if the organizational effort is successful.

At the preliminary meeting, to be held at the YMCA Thursday evening (starting promptly at 7:30 p.m.) a program illustrating how the organization would function has been arranged. Jack Hampson, director of the YMCA, will welcome those present and state the Y's interest in the proposed organization. Bob Holmes will outline the sportsman's position. And tentatively a slide program prepared by the staff of the Allegheny National Forest depicting the relation of modern forestry management to wildlife and its habitat is expected to be shown. While Bob Clever, who at one time competed as a semi-professional tournament caster, will give a fly-casting demonstration on the gym floor to finish out the evening.

Although Thursday's meeting will be confined to the "indoors," future programs would include many field trips where the various facets of outdoorism could be properly demonstrated. In some cases, in fact most cases, the field trips would be open to non-Y members.

From a personal standpoint, I consider the potential of such an organization to be tremendous. Most outdoorists, regardless of what particular activity they favor, are willing and eager to explain the fine points of their "thing" to youngsters as a means of introducing them to the pleasures to be had. And most youngsters are ready and willing to be shown.

So I might add that in addition to the youngsters and their parents, any outdoorist who may be interested in seeing the proposed organization get off to a good start, or assist in its functioning, will be welcomed at the Thursday meeting.

NO GUTS

The federal fish biologists are concerned because of the poor response they are getting to their appeal for fish stomachs. As they point out, the purpose of the project, which requires a heck of a lot of work on their part, is solely in the interest of the fisher-

They only way the fellows are ever going to be able to come up with a constructive plan to improve fishing is to know positively what the fish are foraging on. And the only way they can learn this is through stomach analysis. And if they have to resort to netting, the fisherman is going to lose a lot of fish and that should otherwise be putting up an argument at the end of their lines.

While the number of fishermen will drop off during the winter months, there still will be plenty to keep the project moving if the stomachs keep coming in. So why not give them a hand?

DOE LICENSE DOINGS

In an effort to get the doe license matter reduced to as close to a rational understanding as will be possible under the existing circumstances, it appears that the next meeting of the Brokenstraw Sportsman's Forum will be completely occupied with this high-interest subject.

Bonnie Hoffman, the newly elected county treasurer of Warren County, has agreed to attend the December meeting of the Brokenstraw Sportsmen's Forum, and efforts are being made to have state legislators present along with personnel of the game commission. In fact, Bill Renrick, chairman of the Fish and Game Committee in the House of Representatives, has indicated he will attend the meeting.

Several sportsmen's groups have indicated they will attend the meeting for the specific purpose of learning what can be done to overcome the objectionable features of the present system.

As the regular meeting date (first Tuesday of December) may have to be changed to accommodate the legislators and game personnel, a definite date will be announced in the near future.

Jets Upset Chiefs

NEW YORK (AP) - Bobby Howfield's 39-yard field goal in the fourth quarter and the capricious winds of Shea Stadium combined to give the New York Jets a stunning 13-10 National Football League victory over the powerful Kansas City Chiefs Sunday.

The loss left the Chiefs, who came into the game tied with Oakland for first place in the Western Division of the American Conference, with a 5-2-1 record.

Bengals Bumped Again

CINCINNATI (AP) - Dick Shiner fired a 46-yard touchdown pass to Art Malone with 76 seconds remaining Sunday, giving Atlanta a 9-6 National Football League victory over Cincinnati for the Bengals' seventh straight loss.

It was the only touchdown of the game and culminated in a 75-yard Falcon march in the closing minutes, that wiped out a brilliant goal line stand by the Bengals moments earlier. Bill Bell booted a 23-yard field goal to give Atlanta a 3-0 lead in the first quarter. Horst Mulhmann came back with field goals of 24 and 51 yards to put Cincinnati on top. The last one came with 131/2 minutes to play. After Mulhmann, the Bengals staged a successful goal line stand, halting four Atlanta plays from the two-yard line.

On fourth down, Ken Riley batted down a pass from Shiner to Malone, the same combination that was to give the Falcons their winning score a few minutes later.

Cincinnati, however, failed to mount a drive and kill the clock on the next series. Shiner then successfully guided Atlanta goalward fro a 4-3-1 record. Cincinnati fell to 1-7.

Pack Sacks Bears In Final Seconds

CHICAGO (AP) - Lou Michaels booted a 22-yard field goal in the last 59 seconds of the game to cap a drive fueled by rookie John Brockington, as the Green Bay Packers upset the Chicago Bears 17-14 in National Football League action Sunday.

The defeat stunned a crowd of 55.049 in Soldier Field as the Bears title hopes in the Central Division of the National Football Conference were dimmed on a record of 5-3. Green Bay remained in the divisional cellar with 3-4-1.

The Bears failed to penetrate beyond the Pack's 33 yard line until the final six minutes. Then they scored twice in a little less than three minutes to tie the score 14-14.

The Bears' first touchdown came on an 80-yard drive in seven plays, built on Bobby Douglass' 14-yard pass to Dick Gordon and another 25 yards to Don Shy. Then after missing another pass Douglass hit George Farmer for a 30-yard touchdown.

On the ensuing Bear kickoff Green Bay was penalized for clipping and set back to their own 11. Dave Hampton fumbled and Dick Butkus recovered for the Bears on the 11 setting up the second score.

Hampton took the Bears' kickoff and returned it 62 yards to the Chicago 39. But the Packers, despite a 13-yard run by Brockington, could not sustain the drive and settled for Michaels' game-clinching field goal. Green Bay scored twice in the second quarter, rookie Scott Hunter passing 31 yards to Carroll Dale for one touchdown and spearing Donny Anderson for 39 yards to set up a 7-yard payoff smash by Brockington.

Fumbles and punts killed Cassadaga Valley Saturday as Eisenhower took advantage of all opportunities and won the game handily, 28-6.

The turning point of the game came late in the first quarter when the Cassadaga punter went back to punt from his own 35; he got off a line drive kick, which Mike Luvison gambled on and leaped high to snag the ball. He then simply outran the defense to the right sideline and down 60 yards for the score. Eisenhower ended the season in fourth place in the Valley Conference with a 3-4 record.

Curt Carlson ran the quarterback sneak for the extra points and it was 14-0, which was all Eisenhower needed.

Edinboro and Ohio Northern battled in a blinding snowstorm, with the Fighting Scots holding a slim 7-0 lead at Ada Memorial Stadium in Ada, Ohio.

But the snow stopped for the final period, and Edinboro pushed across two more touchdowns and recorded its eighth consecutive win of the season,

All three Fighting Scots TDs were set up by the defense, the first on a fumble recovery by linebacker Bob King, who pounced on the loose ball at ONU's 42. The Scots drove in for the score in six plays, with Bob Mengerink busting over from the one. Frank Berzansky booted the extra-point. Cornerback Joe Sass initiated the last two scores with a pair of aerial thefts. Sass grabbed the first one at the Polar Bears' 49 yard line and returned it to the 30 before being hauled down. Joe Sanford, senior quarterback, got scoring honors this time, rolling in from the three yard line. The run for the PAT was stopped. Sass snatched the ball again at ONU's 43 to set up the Scots' final TD, which came in just one play, as Sanford hooked up with Mike Romeo Edinboro established a new single season total yardage record, netting 3.557 yards in eight games. The old mark of contests.

The Scots, winners of 20 straight regular season games, will close their season Saturday at California State College.

Q. 2 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

64 VQ8643 OK103 AKJ83 The bidding has proceeded: West North East South Pass 1 🛇 Pass Pass

What do you bid now? A .- Three hearts. After the original pass some effort should be extended on this hand to reach for a game contract. The holding does not quite measure up in high card content to a jump raise, but it does have good distribution. Furthermore, this call may tend to barricade West out of the bidding if he has a delayed spade bid to

Q. 3-Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

AKQJ964 ♥A1082 ♦K74 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass 1 NT Pass 3 4 Pass 2 🌢 Pass

What do you bid now? A .- Pass. Further probing is fraught with great danger and is rather pointiess since partner has indicated possession of a weak hand with a long club suit.

Q. 4-Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠94 ♦K Q983 ♣Q J9875 The bidding has proceeded:

North East South 3 0 What do you bid?

A .- Five clubs. To bid just four clubs would be placing excessive pressure on partner, and there seems little point in showing the diamond suit. You might just as well gamble it out hoping that partner has his values in the right places. Q. 5-As South, vulnerable, you hold: △J ♥AKQ109 ♦83 ♣Q8653

The bidding has proceeded: East South Pass 10 Pass Pass 2 NT Pass 3 & Pass Pass 3 4 Dble. 6 4

What do you bid now? is conventional, calling for the lead of dummy's first bid suit, diamonds. This means he probably holds the ace, queen. If both the hearts and clubs run you may be able to win 12 tricks on the hand in no trump. The bid is a reasonable gamble to protect your partner's hand from the killing diamond opening.

Q. 6-As South, vulnerable, you hold:

▲A8 ♥J5 ♦QJ76 ♣AK1082 The bidding has proceeded: North East South Pass Pass Pass 1 4 Pass 2 A Pass

What do you bid now? A .- Three spades. When partner makes a jump shift after originally passing, he is marked with a pretty good suit and this can considered adequate support.

Q. 7 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠6 ♥AJ10 ♦AKQ965 ♣AQ6

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 10 Pass 1 4

What do you bid now? A .- Three clubs. This hand seems good enough to insist on a game contract, when partner is able to keep the bidding open. If part ner raises clubs, you can go back to diamonds and, if he persists in clubs, that should prove to be the best contract. In fact, if you should find him with five to the king-jack, you can make a slam.

Q. 8-Both vulnerable, as South you hold: 463 ♥987653 ♦1084 #AQ

The bidding has proceeded: North East South 1 4 2 0

What do you bid? A .- Pass. The temptation to double is strong, but you are a shade short of the required high card values. If the double is not left in, a distinct likelihood, you will be rather ill-equipped to carry on the contest.

How to Keep Well

NEW ORLEANS ASTHMA During the last 10 years periodic outbreaks of asthma have occurred in New Orleans. When the wheezing begins, more than 100 victims may be admitted to the Charity Hospital in a 24-hour period. The condition is not as prevalent outside the city and consequently has been dubbed New Orleans asthma.

Studies have demonstrated that many of the victims have a family history of allergy and have the usual manifestations of high sensitivity. Skin tests are positive for a variety of local airborne substances. A group of physicians recently conducted a study of the weather conditions (including climatic factors) during each epidemic. Epidemics reach a peak during September, October and November. Seasonal temperatures are 45 degrees Fahrenheit or less and the relative humidity is 45 per cent or less.

The low humidity favors the spread of airborne allergens and the cooler air induces bronchial spasm. Both of these factors are conducive to asthma but of little help in solving the problem. At this time of year, the wind is from the southwest and of low velocity. In New Orleans, the peak of the ambrosia (ragweed) pollination has been reached and is on the decline. The ragweed causes hay fever but, in many, this is followed by asthma. The victims are still in a state of hypersensitivity and must now also contend with more respiratory infections and molds. Altho tests have shown that the allergic condition is not triggered by any specific chemicals in the air, the population is exposed to the dust and the usual urban pollutants that begin to accumulate with the onset of Allergists in many parts of the country have noted an increase in asthma at the end of the hay fever season. Molds, infections and air pollution also play a role, but apparently the condition reaches epidemic proportions in New Orleans and allergists agree that the asthma deserves to be named after our southern metropolis.

No. This is their job and I've never known them to complain or balk because they had too much to do. The exception is when the tissues get water-logged and the legs puffy (edema).

VIRUS AND CANCER Mr. T.Y. writes: What do you think of the new theory that cancer is caused by a virus? REPLY

This theory is not new, and there is a possibility that viruses are responsible for certain cancers. There are many different types of cancer, and we have no reason to believe that all have the same causative agent.

How Ivan Lives Today

By Sylvia Porter

If you were Ivan and Anna in worktime to buy a weekly Moscow on this, the 54th anniversary of the Nov. 7 Russian Revolution, how would your standard of living compare with that of a generation ago? And how would it compare with the living standard of, say, John and Mary, in New York City? A: You would be better off than in past generations in Russia—but your standards would be much lower than your leaders claim and you would still be suffering from acute shortages in the fields of housing, basic foods, popular consumer goods, automobiles, major appliances. As for the comparison with John and Mary, any average U.S. worker, even in such a high-cost city as New York, is better off than Ivan and Anna in Moscow.

The position of the Soviet consumer is unquestionably improving. To illustrate: in 1928, at the pre-war peak for Soviet living standards, it took Ivan approximately 26 hours of

The salary range is $12,075 to $15,387 for the basic level and $13,979 to $18,725 for the advanced levels. All positions are in Harrisburg and require travel throughout the Commonwealth.

Canteen managers, storekeepers and warehouse superintendents are the merchandising positions open.

Applications must be submitted by Dec. 22 and written examinations will be held Jan. 15, 1972. Salary range is from $5,529 to $10,954.

Executive assistants to perform a wide variety of staff assignments in the office of departmental secretaries pay from $13,301 to $17,839, and applications will be accepted until Dec. 22. Tests are scheduled for Jan. 15.

supply of the seven essential foods for a family of four persons, according to Edmund Nash, economist in the Divison of Foreign Labor Conditions. U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. By mid-1970, that required worktime was down slightly to 20 hours-despite the consumer's retreat during the depression 1930s and the devastating war years in the

Since 1954, Soviet wage-price policy has been designed to keep prices relatively stable while providing for an average annual increase in wages of about 5 per cent.

In 1968, according to plan, Soviet annual rate of growth in the output of consumer goods (8.3 per cent) exceeded for the first time the output of capital goods and this new policy has continued since then. 1971's economic plan is directed, among other things, to increasing "the production of consumer goods in wide demand, food products ...housing, hospitals, Available From State schools...

Yet, the usual boasts of Soviet leaders on the anniversaries of the Bolshevik revolution are not confirmed by the facts.

Housing for Ivan remains dreadfully cramped and says Nash, Soviet housing is "notorious for its scarcity, poor quality of construction, and problems of maintenance." Ivan and Anna waste enormous amounts of time simply standing in queues to buy goods in Russian stores, and as recently as September 1970, Pravda reported a steady stream of complaints from its readers about the absence in stores of glassware and chinaware, knives and forks, blankets, bath

If Ivan is lucky enough to get his name on a restricted waiting list for the purchase of a car. he'll wait two to four years before it gets it. Meats and vegetables are scarce. Services across the board are inadequate.

As for comparisons with us, if you were Ivan, you'd have to work much longer than John for things you want. For potatoes, twice as long; for white bread, 3 times; for beef, 31/2 times; for eggs 71/2 times; for clothing, 6 to 10 times. You'd get som tale of Ivan and John in a simple
